Question Source:

DAC Subcommittee based on National Sexuality Standards and American Academy of Pediatrics recommendations.

To help teach children about body boundaries and safety, the American Academy of Pediatrics suggests the use of appropriate language. Teach children proper names for all body parts, including their genitals: penis, vagina, breasts and buttocks. Making up names for body parts may give the impression that they are bad or a secret and cannot be talked about. Children should also be taught which parts are “private.” This includes the parts of their body that are covered by their swimsuit as well as their mouth. Teach that these places should not be touched or looked at without their permission.

Possible Florida Standards Alignment (see additional info in appendix):

- HE.K.PHC.1.3 – Recognize there are body parts inside and outside the body.
- HE.1.PHC.1.3 – Identify the correct names of human body parts.
- HE.2.PHC.1.3 – Recognize the locations and functions of major human organs.
- HE.3.PHC.1.3 – Recognize that body parts and organs work together to form human body systems.
- HE.4.PHC.1.3 – Identify the human body parts and organs that work together to form healthy body systems.
- HE.5.PHC.1.3 – Explain how human body parts and organs work together in healthy body systems, including the endocrine and reproductive systems.

6. In your opinion, in which grade should age-appropriate instruction in the medically accurate names for body parts, including the genitals begin?
